St. Johnsbury academy, an ancient and honorable institution, is seeking an endowment fund of $500,000. It is to be hoped that the aspiration may be realized in order that the institution may perform its best work.

The first effective bit of advertising in favor of the new volume, "Sins of Hollywood," has been given through the ruling of a deputy U. S. district attorney in Los Angeles, to the effect that the book is too scurrilous to go through the mails.

The town of Ludlow has voted to build a $150,000 town hall to replace a structure recently burned. That ought to make quite a community center building, as well as a place for the transaction of the town's business. The decision to build such a structure is evidence of a progressive spirit in Ludlow.

EUROPE AND ITS TOURIST HARVEST.

There is no doubt that Europe has the greatest show on earth at the present time with which to attract Americans and American gold. There is just enough of the desire to see the torn battle regions to induce Americans to make the trip to Europe and thus to part with a considerable slice of their worldly goods; and it is said that thousands upon thousands of people in the United States are preparing to spend the summer in various parts of Europe. It is certain that the Europeans will do the remainder of the act in separating the Americans from their money. Always grasping when it came to the matter of charging their American visitors, they will be doubly so after this in an endeavor to recoup their fortunes and make up for the eight lean years incident to and following the World War. American tourists in Europe will need to take along some fat pocketbooks or a liberal letter of credit if they hope to see any considerable part of the devastated Europe. Of that they may be assured at the outset.

The elements that are active in the Democratic ranks of the country seem to be centering their efforts in the promotion of the candidacy of William C. McAdoo, the former secretary of the treasury; and that movement centers in the middle-west. It would not be surprising if the Democrats select a type of candidate very much unlike the type represented by Woodrow Wilson. As a party leader Woodrow Wilson was not all that could be desired; he lacked the magnetism and the personal qualities calculated to make a candidate about whom a party gathers as if drawn by some invisible force. He was not a good mixer, in the common acceptance of that term. McAdoo, on the other hand, has some magnetism and he is capable of mingling with his fellow-men in the party as Woodrow Wilson could not. McAdoo may lack the intellect of Wilson but he is very much more human; and the election of Warren G. Harding indicates that the people like someone who is human, that is, one of them—"just folks," as Mrs. Harding so concisely and accurately stated the case in connection with her husband. Whether McAdoo possesses sufficient other qualities to make him a formidable candidate for the Democratic nomination is more open to doubt.

FREQUENT PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS.

There is something more than doctor's propaganda in the suggestion made before a medical gathering in Portland, Me., by Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director-general of the American College of Surgeons, recently, to the effect that life of the average person would be increased various years and deaths from various diseases would be materially reduced if all the people of the United States would submit to complete physical examination at least once a year. We know that it is not dentists' propaganda which tells us to have our teeth examined at somewhat frequent intervals for we know that disintegration of teeth is going on all the time that only frequent inspection, followed by application of the usual remedies, will preserve the teeth of the average person. We ought to know, too, that the body, as well as the teeth, is subject to various influences, which are inimical to health but which may never be known at the outset or even when somewhat advanced; and if these influences are allowed to continue beyond a certain point they are quite certain to result in the complete breaking-down of health and perhaps a premature death.

In most instances, these influences could be detected by examination by physicians of competence, and in case the examinations were made soon enough the enemies of health could be completely thwarted and the body restored to normal. Inasmuch as these insidious agencies are always at work, it follows that the examinations should be at somewhat frequent intervals in order to catch the diseases or ailments before they have had a chance to undermine the health.

Perhaps Dr. Martin was somewhat extravagant in saying that the life of the average person could be prolonged fifteen years and that yearly deaths from tuberculosis could be reduced from 150,000 to 50,000, with corresponding decrease in deaths from other diseases; but it undoubtedly is true that decided advance could be made toward improvement of public health in general if the people—all the people—should be willing to submit themselves to frequent examinations. The cost of such examination would not be heavy; but the returns on the investment would be very large in the form of sustained health. It remains to be seen whether people will make the small initial investment.

JINGLES AND JESTS

The Cheap Way.

"Old Closebags is a free thinker, isn't he?"

"Yes, if it cost him anything he wouldn't think."—New York Globe.

Bright Ideas.

Reggie—What do you think of my new football outfit. See how well I'm padded. Why, nothing could hurt me. Reggie—Don't you think now would be a good time to ask papa?—Detroit News.

Utility.

Jinks—What did Marjorie do with that shiftless cave-man she was engaged to?

Binks—Jilted him, I believe, on the ground that a chap like that ought to be useful as well as elemental.—Life.

Hair Pulling.

Among admiring maidens
Who want to be his wife,
A spongy fellow often
Can stir up lots of strife.
—Boston Transcript.

The Reason.

Tourist—Why, Donald, you surprise me. You don't like the English people and yet you have an English wife.

Donald (with a sigh)—Ay, mon, that accounts for it.—Boston Transcript.

No Hurry.

Mrs. Colt (wife of Colonel Colt of Texas)—As I was going by Turner's this morning John, I heard Jim Bluff say if justice had its due, you'd have adorned a telegraph pole long ago.

Col. Colt (springing up from dinner table)—Jim Bluff, you say? Let me.

Wife—Now, John, please finish your dinner. The shooting will keep. Philadelphia Inquirer.

Truth Will Triumph.

A merchant had advertised for a boy.

Late in the afternoon a red-headed, freckle-faced blue-eyed, honest-looking boy applied for the job.

"Do you like to work?" asked the merchant.

"No, sir!" replied the boy.

"Then you can have the job," replied the merchant. "You are the first boy who's been here to-day who didn't lie about it and say 'yes'."—Washington Post.

The Wonderful Movies.

"We'll have to stop work on 'The Gladiator's Daughter,'" said the movie producer.

"But we've built a section of Rome just for that picture."

"We can use it for 'The Steel King's Romance.' Put up a few modern signs, have one of our utility men pose as a traffic cop and we'll call it Pittsburgh."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

No Chance.

"Marry you!" exclaimed the tempestuous girl. "Why, I wouldn't marry you if you had a million dollars."

"You're right, you wouldn't," replied the candid man. "In that case I would be more discriminating."—American Legion Weekly.

Different.

Madge—I never thought you were the kind of girl who would go in for sports.

Marjorie—Neither am I, but I'm certainly going in for those sport clothes.—New York Sun.

Referred to Conan Doyle.

Wyoming exchange—Both the dead man and his wife were questioned by the attorney and each told the same story.—Boston Transcript.

A Bank With a Safety Valve

Practical service consists, first, of desire and, second, of ability. The desire to serve must not be an unbridled disposition to throw out money right and left without regard to purpose or security, under the impression that permanent business or confidence can be gained in such a way.

True banking service is not charity, and banks are not charitable institutions.

The Peoples National Bank of Barre has been growing gradually through the last two decades, growing in resources and growing in confidence. There is no magic concerned in this development, it is simply the slow evolution of conservative financial policies conscientiously adapted to the needs of a viable community. The result of this process is that we are now at a point where our ability to serve is being reflected by a large volume of increased business.

Our experience gained through the many years of steady and uncompromising application of correct financial policies stands us in good stead to-day, and while we are known as "The Service Bank" we have the further virtue of being known as "The Bank with the Safety Valve."

If you believe in safe, conservative banking as the best means of advancing your own interests and that of the community, we shall welcome your account.

STOWE

There was a large attendance at the song recital Friday evening at the Akers Memorial building by the pupils of the Stowe high school and graded schools, conducted by Miss Ruth McMahon, musical director. Selections were rendered by a mixed chorus, the school orchestra, the girls' glee club, grade one, grades one and two, grades three and four, grades four and five. There was a piano solo by Arlie Wright; vocal solo, Beatrice Kaiser, vocal duet, Beatrice Kaiser and Agnes Towne; saxophone solo, Clifton Stafford. The accompanists were Misses Mildred McMahon, Hazel Gibbs and Arlie Wright. The program closed with a pleasing flowerland pageant, with argument by June Oakes and with Rachel Smith as Princess Raindrop; Ramona McMahon, rainbow; Harriett Wells, butterfly; Mary Margaret, fern; Kathleen Ellsworth, daisy; Doris Moulton, forget-me-not; Freda Canning, rose; Dorothy Santamore, sunflower; Marion Santamore, pansy; Viola Smith, dandelion; Ramona Gale, buttercup. All were in appropriate costume. The rainbow gave a pretty dance.

Edwin Lawrence Bigelow of Middlebury college was a week-end visitor in Stowe.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Mills and son, Roger, were to leave Pasadena, Cal., Wednesday with the body of Mr. Mills' sister, Eleonora Mills Wilkins, who died at Pasadena on the 11th after a long illness with cancer. Mrs. Wilkins was the widow of Alvin Wilkins and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mills, all late of Stowe. She was born in 1859 and passed her life here until about six years ago, when she went to live in Essex Junction, going from there to California in 1920. She leaves three brothers, Edwin E. Mills of Melrose, Mass., Bertrand A. Mills and Ernest C. Mills of Pasadena, and a sister, Mrs. Wilbur O. Bettis of Pasadena, at whose home she died. All were formerly of Stowe. It is expected that burial will be made at the Barre cemetery, with service at the Barre Bank Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Osborne of Springfield, O., came Friday to pass the summer with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Straw. Mrs. Abbie Warren, who has been having treatment at the Salem hospital in Salem, Mass., for several months for neuritis and nervous trouble, and whose condition is somewhat improved, went Friday to the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lark, at West Lebanon, N. H., accompanied by Mrs. Lark, who had passed a few days in Salem.

Miss Mary Keefe of Waterbury spent last week at the home of her niece, Mrs. George A. Ayers, in Stowe Hollow.

The pupils of the Moscow school carried out Memorial day exercises and the Mills school pupils gave a one-act play at an entertainment Friday evening at the Moscow schoolhouse for the benefit of the Busy Bee Community club. A box social followed the program. There was a good attendance. The school room was tastefully decorated with wild flowers, red, white and blue crepe paper and flags. Much credit is due the teachers, Misses Grace Busch and Florence Austin, for the good discipline of the school and the excellent manner in which the program was carried out.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Pollard were among those from Burlington who passed through Stowe Saturday to patrol the Burlington section of the long trail.

Bettering the Breed.

"Is Hustler the kind of man who boasts of his ancestors?"

"No; he's the kind of man who boasts of having risen above them."—Boston Transcript.

Summer Time's Sandal Time

And how the youngsters do love them. They are so cool, and easy to slip on, too. Most children like Sandals better than going barefoot even. They keep pebbles and burrs and splinters from sticking in. They are here for children of all ages, extra sturdy ones.

Rogers' Walk-Over Boot Shop

Heard in a Restaurant.

"Here's a queer announcement on this bill of fare. The proprietor will be glad to receive complaints of patrons."

"What's queer about it?"

"Why should the proprietor be glad to receive complaints?"

"Because then he knows that his customers are not getting more than their money's worth."—Boston Transcript.

A Neighbor's Plan

One of your friends is quietly building up a snug little fortune. You will be surprised some day and wonder how he did it.

But it is a very simple story.

This man does not have a large income. He has never made a large savings deposit in his life. Small deposits made every week is the secret of this man's success. His savings account shows a steady climb for years.

The average man fails to win because he is not willing to make small savings deposits and make them as often as possible.

Most any one can see the importance of making a BIG deposit—but many fail to understand the value of the SMALL ones.

Think it over.
